

STONEHURST PLACE NAMED "BEST PAMPER"

ATLANTA, January 29, 2009 - Stonehurst Place, Atlanta's first EarthCraft Certified Inn, has been named DailyCandy Atlanta's 2008 Sweetest Things top choice for "Best Pamper". The online publication which features top trends in fashion, beauty, restaurants, housewares and travel made the announcement online January 29, 2009. DailyCandy first featured Stonehurst Place on October 20, 2008 in an article on its Atlanta edition titled "Sweet Home Away From Home", a story popular enough to get Stonehurst Place nominated for DailyCandy Atlanta's 2008 Sweetest Things.

"It's just such a treat to get that kind of recognition," said owner Barb Shadomy after learning the news. "What an honor that so many people thought enough of us to take the time to vote. This truly represents what we strive to be for our guests, their special pampering retreat."

Stonehurst Place proudly showcases several original art pieces of Andy Warhol, Dale Chihuly, Candida Hofer and others as well as an original Ray Eames lounge chair and ottoman and a cabinet filled with vintage Hermes handbags. Each of the two rooms and three suites, all with private baths, at Stonehurst Place are designed to let the guests lose themselves in luxurious comfort while enjoying state of the art amenities.

Stonehurst Place, originally built in 1896, features a Solar Thermal system that heats the water used throughout the home. Ten solar collectors on the roof are connected to and supply heat to three 105-gallon hot water storage tanks in the basement. Rainwater is collected into two 1700-gallon cisterns and is used as an environmentally conscious solution to irrigate the landscaping on the property. In addition, a greywater system collects and sanitizes water from some sinks and showers and uses it for flushing toilets in the home. Stonehurst Place is proud to do its part to help the environment and uses organic products in the specially prepared breakfasts served to guests.
